Motivational Interviewing (MI) with Aggressive, Challenging, and Hostile Clients

Presenters: Ernest Marshall, LCSW, and Leslie Barfknecht, LCSW

Date: Friday, December 6, 2019 Time: 8:30am - 4:00pm 6.0 CEUs

Training Description

Motivational Interviewing is an evidence-based therapeutic technique designed to help people identify their readiness, willingness, and ability to make meaningful change in their lives. This evolving intervention continues to be applied and effective across multiple disciplines. Originally utilized in the field of substance abuse; motivational interviewing has been validated in other fields including medical, public, and mental health, and various criminal justice settings. A brief overview of the most recent research related to MI will be included in this training. In recent years the use of motivational interviewing has increased in the criminal justice and forensic mental health populations. MI is specifically effective with populations impacted by anger, aggression, substance misuse, rage control issues, impulsivity and violence, including sexual offending. Each of these behavioral presentations has variations within the development, etiology and intentions associated with the behaviors. Successful interventions are founded on the ability to critically assess these pathways and apply strategies to manage countertransference.

It is presumed attendees will have previous experience in Motivational Interviewing, this training is not an introduction to MI. This course will offer a brief review of MI and provide the attendee with specific MI adherent strategies in dealing with these behaviors. Attendees will be asked to participate in several experiential opportunities to practice applicable, take away skills to implement in their work.

Training Objectives

1. Review of Motivational Interviewing skills, techniques, processes and the Spirit.
2. Provide a brief overview of the latest research related to MI effectiveness.
3. Discuss MI strategies for clients with anger, aggressive, rage, and impulsive behaviors and how to de-escalate, particularly when assessing motivation and intention.
4. Utilize MI in the assessment process to further understand the client's goals and intentions.
5. Increase ability to adapt MI strategies to differing presentations through case examples and audience participation.
6. Increase self-awareness and ability to manage countertransference.
